

Dear Parent or Guardian-

Say Something school assemblies are interactive and fast-paced and are designed to keep students' attention and equip them to recognize and respond to bullying and exploitation. Our media-driven programs are interspersed with short speaking segments, including survivor testimonies.

Our assemblies are focused on continued student action and we provide the tools and opportunities to help students get involved. Students are challenged to not only help one another, but also to empower one another, protect one another, and encourage one another.

The Say Something assemblies bring awareness, resources and empowerment to students, staff, and parents alike. Bullying, suicide, sex trafficking and addiction have become epidemics in our society and the solution is to educate, engage and empower this generation.

The topics we deal with are difficult; sexual exploitation, suicide, sex trafficking, bullying, but the way in which we present these topics is both sensitive and appropriate according to which grade level we are speaking to.
