

Our mission is to help students recognize and respond to issues that threaten their futures.

Dear Administrator –

At Say Something, we're all about students. What makes us different from any other school assembly program out there is we present a fast-paced, interactive, multi-media presentation educating the students about hard issues like bullying, suicide, sex trafficking and addiction, and we do this in a way that is both sensitive and age-appropriate.

Say Something's approach is to equip students to be aware of the warning signs of exploitation, depression and addiction and to "say something" if they or their friends are showing signs. Students are challenged to not only help one another, but also to empower one another, protect one another, and encourage one another. We also focus on continued student action and we have tools and opportunities to help students to get involved in the cause.

The assembly is more affordable than you might think. Say Something travels nationally and internationally so we bring; our own sound system, 42-foot video wall and concert-style lighting. All we need from you is a place to present, electricity and a few volunteers. Your cost for the complete assembly is $2500. There are no hidden costs.

That price provides your students and staff with all of the follow-up resources. Our presenters will also make themselves available to speak to leadership classes, your teachers, lunch groups, and student councils following the presentation. We will also send your school counselors information ahead of time to prepare them for the questions that may be asked by students and parents following the assembly.

If you have no budget for assemblies whatsoever, give us a chance to ask our donors to help. We won't let money keep us from coming to your school. We really are here to help. Check out our video at www.saysomethingassembly.com. I assure you that all of the content is appropriate and in good taste. I am sure you and your students will enjoy the presentation.

Looking forward to working with you,
Jody Dyess
Say Something Director